DIRECTOR'S ETTER:

I'm going to write this year's letter in honor of one of our core values: humility. I am writing this 2022 reflection in June of 2023. While I'm going to do my best to keep 2023 out of this, I've got to be honest... I'm not entirely sure that the year has actually changed?!

Joking aside, 2022 was the year that I thought to myself: "OK, time to fasten the seatbelt!" The honeymoon phase was over and the exhaustion, overwhelm, and learning lessons set in. I even finished the year off with a severely sprained ankle after carrying an empty box down the stairs. (I can hear our volunteer, Jan, in my head now: "I mean... REALLY???")

But luckily, this year, it wasn't just me. Let's be honest, it was never just me, but the day-to-day normally (and understandably) fell on my shoulders. However, 2022 solidified the most trustworthy and committed day-to-day team that I could have ever imagined. When I was away for a month, we hit a record-high for deliveries made. When I couldn't walk, we moved an entire furniture inventory to a new location (I swear I didn't plan that).

Never having had a newborn to take care of, I often imagine that these first years of DIG might be similar to that. In the beginning, it felt like it was just me, taking care of this massively important thing that I created but was, truthfully, not fully trained for. As we head into year three, I can't help but beam with pride when I sit on the sidelines and watch this big, bumbling toddler start to walk with the encouragement of the community around it.

I never take for granted the belief that our small but mighty team has in the mission of DIG. I know that my airheaded days are likely just beginning, but I also know that I will have people in my corner to pull me up, give me a loving yet attention-grabbing shake, and say: "I mean... REALLY???".

In humility (and gratitude),

Emily Gorski,
Founder & Executive Director

NEW KIDS & THE BLOCK!

After more than a year of searching, we found ourselves BACK in the building that started our search for space in the first place! As of January 2023, DIG is officially new "residents" of Milton, PA. Nestled in Northumberland County, just across the river from Union County, we are happy to be more geographically central to our clientele. This move will undoubtedly save our organization, clients, and volunteers on gas costs, while providing us with more than 4x the space for furniture storage and display, repairs, administration, and client shopping.

Thank you to our partners and volunteers in your help with our BIG move and ongoing renovation of this special new space.

It's not easy moving one house, let alone furniture for more than 70 homes! Your help means that we can get back to serving local families as quickly as possible.

MUSSIR MOMENT:

At DIG, we are trusted to hear and learn from so many stories during conversations with our clients. We share laughs, tears, and so many similarities. By making time to learn about our clients, not only are we gaining information to better inform our service delivery, but we are also working towards our mission by giving the dignity of time and empathy in a time where perhaps it is needed most.
